2023 IMPACT REPORT

About NeuGen

When an individual goes to prison, he or she is not the only one affected. More often than not, the families and children suffer greatly as they are hit with the loss of breadwinner, sudden absence of a parental figure, strained ties as well as the social stigma towards offenders and their families.

In particular, the children are often susceptible to various factors such as low income, erratic parental behaviors, poor family relationships and poor academic performance.

In fact, studies have shown that not only they are more likely to achieve low educational attainment, there is a higher likelihood for them to commit crimes, a phenomenon known as intergenerational offending.

What is Intergenerational Offending?

Children with criminal parents are 3 times more likely to become offenders.

1 in every 5 children of drug-abusing parents experience intergenerational offending

Beneficiary story - Madam Lim, 58

“My top priority is Lena's safety and support, and I take pride in successfully accomplishing this.”

I stay at a 2-room rental flat with Lena, my 17-year-old granddaughter. She has been with me since young because her mother is still in prison, and we share a very close bond. Some may see me as a very strict grandmother, but I know well in my heart that it is to keep her safe and focused on her studies.

With the support from NeuGen, Lena has been attending the sponsored tuition since 2019, which greatly helped her to cope with ‘N’ Levels exam in 2022 and successfully secure admission to a local polytechnic. I am incredibly proud of her dedication and positive attitude despite the challenges! Even her tutor had given good feedback about Lena’s progress. We also enjoyed attending the NeuGen events, workshops and festive celebrations together, which brought us closer as a family.

Our work is not done yet...

NeuGen is actively involved in providing assistance to an average of 600 children and 300 families , constituting approximately 20% of the inmate population, estimated at 2,000 families.

By 2027,

Our goal is to extend support to over 1,000 families within the next five years.

Give a Little, Help a Lot

Our current funding allows us to reach only 10% or less.

We can change that with your support.

We are in constant need of funding and resources to keep our programmes and services running. Your contribution will go a long way to support the children and families of reformed offenders as they rebuild their lives.

NeuGen Fund (UEN: S00CC0006G) is a registered charity which is approved as an Institution of a Public Character (IPC) in Singapore. Donations of $50 and above will be eligible for 2.5 times tax deduction and be automatically included in your tax assessment if you provide your NRIC/FIN, or UEN for the organisation.

We are looking forward to your support!
